You can listen to Tom Swarbrick everyday as the host of LBC's Drivetime show. He took over the show in 2022 has already seen an increase in figures establishing himself a loyal fanbase. He also makes regular appearances on This Morning's Morning View.

In 2016, he was hired by Downing Street as an adviser to Prime Minister Theresa May. As Head of Broadcast, Tom was given a unique perspective on numerous crises and history-making moments: the General Election 2017, triggering of Article 50 and Donald Trump's election, to name but a few.

Tom completed a Theology degree at Cambridge before joining the BBC as a local radio reporter where he was nominated for a Sony Radio Academy Award before then joining LBC as a junior reporter in 2012. It's here he saw off household names to be named both the National Radio Journalist of the Year and the International Reporter of the Year. In 2015 he became the station's Chief Correspondent and the youngest ever presenter of a national talk radio show.
