

Trejayne is a glass blower based in Scotland, and over the past 4 years has taught herself the art of Flameworking – a modern approach to glass blowing that uses a torch rather than a traditional furnace. Since 2021, she started documenting her learning journey via social media and has gained an audience of over 2.8 million across Instagram and TikTok.

They started foraging to connect with nature during the lockdown and now has a following of over 600k on her dedicated TikTok account – FindersFeeders. Featured in Gather Magazine, she encourages viewers to get out into nature to connect with the world around them. She uses her foraging to crossover with her glasswork – making natural ink to use in her glass pens!

Her journey showed her created a Skill Tree – a project-based map for basic to intermediate glass blowing skill with planned rewards along the way. Over time, as she completed each project, her skills grew. Her videos showcase her whimsical pieces such as pens, flowers, crowns, and goblets often inspired by pop culture and tv shows.

She is also the creator of Glass Nail Rings, an innovative glass product that allows people to wear beautiful removable rings which mimic the look of false nails. So those who cannot have false nails done due to any aspect of their lifestyle can still enjoy luxurious nail decoration. In 2024, Trejayne featured her prototype Glass Nail Rings at Paris Fashion Week alongside Diane de Paris' collection of sensational garments.
